

Comparative Cognition Society Early Career Award Sponsored by the Psychonomic Society

CCS will honor early career (within 10 years of PhD and pre-tenure, or within 5 years of first position) scientists who have made a notable contribution to the study of comparative cognition. Nominees must submit a letter of nomination (self-nominations are encouraged), a current c.v., and up to two support letters to the chair of the CCS awards committee by January 30. Applications will be reviewed by the CCS awards committee.

The award winner will be announced before the conference and give a 15-minute talk on their research, introduced by the awards committee chair. The winner will receive $1,000.

Nominations, letters of support and CVs should be sent to Professor Dave Brodbeck:
